Newest state test scores say schools ‘Need Improvement’

Kentucky released scores from its new “Unbridled Learning” assessment and accountability testing system last Friday, Nov. 2, for every school district in the state. Before the results were made public, Gallatin County School officials said they expected scores to be lower than in past years and they were correct. None of the county’s schools met state averages.

Scores are ranked on a scale of 1 to 100. Gallatin County High School scored 49.2 while the state average was 54.8. The middle school scored 50.3 which was slightly lower than the state average of 53.5. The upper elementary school’s score was 48.8 while the state average was 57.3.

Over all, the school system scored 49.4 which puts it in the 17 percentile among all districts in the state. Schools in the top ten percent were classified as “Distinguished,” and those in the top 30 percent were called “Proficient.” Schools such as Gallatin in the 69th percentile and below were ranked “Needs Improvement”. This year, 127 schools in the state were listed as Distinguished, 260 were Proficient and 899 were classified as “Needs Improvement.”

The new Unbridled Learning tests are more rigorous and challenging than the previous testing system called CATS (Commonwealth Accountability Testing System). The new system focuses on students’ college and career readiness to ensure their success after high school.

The recent scores are results from tests in reading, math, science and social studies that students in grades 3-12 took last May.

Police release names of injured Carroll students

The names of children injured last week in the fatal Carroll County Head Start school bus wreck have been released. Jose Ardon-Landa, Dulce Cruz, Ryleigh Hollingsworth, Brayden Jones, Jordan Raisor and Mariah Robles were treated at Kosair Children’s Hospital in Louisville. They were all three-years or four-years old. Leighann Hendren, 3, was taken to University of Kentucky Children’s Hospital.

Bus driver, Laura Reed, 59, of Carrollton and her assistant, Tina Gividen, 52, of Carrollton were also injured and are recovering.

Students Ryder Deitz and Caroline Tuttle, both three-years old, were killed when their bus ran off the road for an unknown reason, flipped over and crashed into a tree.

More than ten Gallatin County medics, firemen and EMS members were among the rescue workers who rushed to the scene of the accident last Monday, Oct. 29, on Boone Rd near Carrollton. The accident is still under investigation by the Kentucky State Police.

Last Thursday, Gallatin County high school and middle school students dressed in Carroll County’s colors of black and gold to show their support for those people in our neighboring county who were affected by the tragedy. Their pictures can be found on page 12 of this paper.

On a cool and crisp Election Day, 52 percent of Gallatin County voters went to the polls and a majority cast ballots for Republican Mitt Romney as President of the United States. Romney received 1,758 votes here to President Barack Obama’s 1,238 votes. Obama won the two Warsaw precincts but lost in the county’s six other precincts.

Romney ran strongest in the Concord Precinct which he won 302 to 130. He carried Glencoe 306 to 211, Napoleon 186 to 142, Sparta 226 to 139, Veterans Memorial 116 to 70 and Gold Star 131 to 78.

For Republicans in Gallatin County, the election was similar to the Presidential race four years ago when Republican John McCain beat Obama here 1,840 to 1,278.

The surprise of the election in Gallatin County was that the two incumbent school board members lost their seats in landslide fashion. Veteran board member Becky Burgett lost to Chad Murray 405 to 211 in the Napoleon/Concord district. In the Sparta District, incumbent Joanie Rogers lost to Joseph “Dicky” Wilson 206 to 102. Many will look at the results in those races as voter anger over recent tax increases approved by the Board of Education.

Glencoe school board member Alex Tainsh ran unopposed and had 305 votes.

There were also city council races in Warsaw and Glencoe and a city commission race in Sparta.

In Warsaw, incumbent city council member Keith Jones led the pack with 473 votes. Others winning seats on council were Jamie Gould with 456 votes, Randy Jones with 448 votes, Jerry Hunt 411 votes, Tyler Boaz with 392 votes and Gary Thompson with 355 votes. Michael Finrock had 246 votes.

In Glencoe, ten candidates were in a race for six seats on council. Anthony West was the top vote getter in Glencoe with 101 votes. The other winners were JuJu Sullivan with 99 votes, Charlotte Adams with 93 votes, Mike Hampton with 84 votes, Benny Edmondson with 75 votes and Richard Dunaway with 77 votes. Those who didn’t win were James Edmondson with 71 votes, former mayor Mike Murphy with 66 votes, Leeza Nantz with 57 votes and Teresa McPherson with 49 votes.

Bonnie Bond led all candidates in the race for four seats on the Sparta City Commission with 34 votes. Dale Samuel had 32 votes and Bill Dunavent and Chad Dunavent each had 29 votes.

Republican Brian Linder carried the county with 1,584 votes in the hard fought race for state representative in the 61st District. Democrat Wanda Crupper Hammons got 1,396 votes here. Late Tuesday, it appeared Linder would win the race by also carrying the other two counties in the district, Owen and Grant.

Republican Thomas Massie beat Democrat Bill Adkins 1,540 to 1,260 in Gallatin County in the race for U. S. Congress in the Fourth District. Massie appeared to be on his way to landslide victory early in the evening.

The amendment to ensure hunters’ rights easily passed in Gallatin County 2,229 to 363.

Several candidates ran unopposed. Those included Court Clerk Pam McIntyre who got 2,263 votes in the county.

Gallatin County has 5,930 registered voters and 3,109 (52 percent) went to the polls Tuesday. In 2008, 57 percent of the county’s voters went to the polls.

Deer season often brings deer stories

This and That

By Kelley Warnick
Editor

If you wake up Saturday to the shots of what sounds like an M-16 machine gun, don’t panic. The Iranians haven’t decided to take all of Gallatin County hostage, it’s just that deer season has returned to our part of the world.

Different people have different feelings about this popular hunting season. Some look forward to it all year but for others, it brings revulsion as they think about poor Bambi being slaughtered.

I’ve learned that deer hunting, like politics and religion, is not a good subject to bring up in casual conversation, unless you’re ready for an argument. There are, however, some stories I’ve heard about deer season I find quite unusual.

For instance, a friend of mine was passing time drinking a beer at a local hangout one hunting season when a man from Chicago drove up.

The visitor from “The Windy City” had a big smile on his face.

“I sure picked the right place to hunt,” the happy marksman said. “This deer walked right up to me and all I had to do was pull the trigger. And by the way, I didn’t know there were mule deer in this part of the country.”

When my friend went out to see the hunter’s trophy, he was shocked because lying in the back of the man’s truck wasn’t a mule deer at all but a regular mule instead. I imagine that hunter found his steaks a little tough when he got back to his Chicago home.

There are similar stories about hunters mistakenly shooting horses, cows, and a family’s faithful German Shepherd during deer season. I’ve heard other bizarre tales too.

A few years ago, a man told me he was walking through the woods when he heard a terrible cry for help. Upon investigation, he found a terrified hunter up in an oak tree.

“There’s a killer deer on the rampage,” the hunter said. “I had him in my sights and was ready to shoot, but before I could pull the trigger, that deer charged me. I dropped my gun, ran for my life and climbed up this tree. Please don’t let him get me,” the man begged.

My friend saw no evidence of a killer deer lurking in the woods. Perhaps the frightened hunter let his conscience play games with him that November afternoon.

There are too many tales to repeat them all. I’ve heard about a ghost deer that returns from the dead to haunt his killer. I’ve also been told about a phantom deer that appears, then disappears, then reemerges a few seconds later in a totally different location. There’s another story about a hunter who dozed off in the woods one morning and woke up to find a big buck asleep next to him.

It’s hard to know which of the yarns to believe. For that reason, I think I’ll stay at home and watch football games this weekend. After all, that killer deer may still be lurking around our county somewhere and I’ve never been good at climbing trees.

Move elections to Saturday

By the time you read this, we should know who the next President of the United States will be. No matter how it turns out, I will remind myself that in a Constitutional Republic the people hold the power over the government through their individual votes. I never forget that when I step into the booth and mark my ballot.

I voted early and am glad Florida provides for that because today it's pouring rain. Kentucky is perhaps more traditional with no early voting except in a few instances. There's room at the voting booth for both.

But, let us face it, this election season went on too long. I was so tired of all the campaign ads, I just would not turn on the news. But I still couldn't escape them. Every time I opened Facebook, I got ads. When I opened up MSN.com, I got ads. Ads on top of ads on top of ads, all targeted to the 3 to 4 percent of voters who don't make their minds up until they step into the voting booth.

I have a few suggestions to make this process easier. First, let us move Election Day to the first Saturday in the month. Many countries vote on the weekends. There is nothing sacred about the first Tuesday in November. Most people are off on Saturday and it is all about making voting available to the electorate. Encourage states that don't have early voting to adopt it. The number of days is subject to debate.

Finally, no political campaigning or ads should air until 30 days out from Election Day. That suggestion comes from Great Britain. If you cannot make your case in 30 days then maybe you should not be running for office.

Who will pay for Verona's escort to 'Super Bowl'?

Dear Editor:

For everyone who has not heard of the Gallatin County Mighty Pros football team, they are third and fourth graders who spent the summer practicing three days a week and played games against other communities every Sunday. They won seven of eight games.

Last Sunday, they played Walton-Verona in the "Super Bowl" at Gallatin County and this letter is about that game.

December 12, 2012, is a big day for me. I'll be 81 and have spent 53 of those years in Gallatin County. My son graduated from Gallatin County.

I was very active in the school for 43 years. But I've never seen a Gallatin County fire truck or ambulance escort the opposing team into the ball field and I never thought it would happen here. But it did happen last Sunday for some reason I can't figure out.

My question is, "Who will pay for Gallatin County's emergency vehicles to make that trip to Verona and back? It cost me $700 to go to St. Elizabeth Hospital in the ambulance not too long ago.

Our taxpayers' money misspent at Mighty Pros game

Dear Editor:

I want the Mighty Pros team to know how proud I am of them. They did a great job, played hard and had a good season.

Unfortunately, the team was surprised and devastated to see our Gallatin County fire trucks and firemen escort the opposing team onto the field last weekend.

The boys were hurt and upset, along with their parents. They couldn't understand why their opposition was given that kind of fanfare.

Everyone knows who made the call to escort the other team into the field. Now you know where your tax money goes.

Debbie Johnson
Warsaw

Editor's Note:

Gallatin County Judge/executive Ken McFarland said that no county vehicles were used to escort the Walton/Verona football team into Warsaw. He said police cars were used for safety and traffic control reasons and an ambulance is stationed at all football games in case of injury. He said the Gallatin County Fire Chief used his personal car with lights flashing to bring the Walton/Verona team into Warsaw at his own expense.

Kentucky Commentary

Obamacare will hurt our nursing home patients

When Dennis Budlove arrived at the Fern Terrace long-term care facility in Bowling Green nine months ago, he felt "like I came home."

But will Budlove, 50, who suffers physical and psychological problems, still have a home in 2014?

If Obamacare's employer mandates remain unchanged, 4,000 residents in Kentucky's 94 personal care homes in 82 different counties could face desperate situations, including homelessness.

Obamacare mandates that firms with more than 50 employees must offer health insurance benefits or pay a $2,000 annual penalty for each additional employee hired. These employees will receive government-subsidized health insurance.

For Owensboro's Jack Simpson, owner of Fern Terrace and four other similar facilities in Kentucky, the bill will simply be too high.

Having endured years of trying to meet state regulations, Simpson says the $289,000 bill he will receive for not providing health insurance to the 200 caregivers whose jobs he created will cripple operations.

"The cost would be tremendous," Simpson said. "It would be more than I intend to pay, so that would leave me nothing to do but close."

While not all personal care homes in Kentucky are as well-maintained as Simpson's, he is a philanthropic entrepreneur who's done a remarkable job of building, staffing and providing for his facilities that care for Kentuckians who neither qualify for a nursing home vacancy nor can afford an assisted living facility — all for $38.60 a day.

It's the Lord's work.

"I pay $822 a month," Budlove said. "If you add up what they're giving me here — especially the medical supplies — it would cost you more than that on the outside. Here, my medical is taken care of; there's no co-pay and they make sure I take my medicines at the right time and in the right amount. Plus, I've eaten healthier meals than when I lived at home with mom."

How would a shutdown at Fern Terrace affect Budlove and his fellow residents at the impeccably well-run indigent-care home?

"There are a lot of people here that would be homeless," he said. "If I had to move out of here, I'd pretty much be lost."

Whoever said "what happens in Washington stays in Washington" has never met Budlove.

Don't count on the current gubernatorial administration in Frankfort to ensure the most vulnerable among us — including Budlove — don't end up "lost," either.

Simpson has tried repeatedly through the years to get the Beshear administration to assist him in different ways, including helping get personal care facilities qualified for Medicaid funding. Other states, including neighboring Missouri, have already taken this step.

Not only has the Beshear administration refused to help, many of Frankfort's bureaucrats seem openly hostile to Simpson, his personal care homes and the industry in general.

Including the personal care homes under Medicaid would result in higher reimbursements and save the commonwealth a ton of money.

For instance, many patients in Simpson's homes are indigent and suffer from poor mental health. Considering a patient's daily cost at one of Kentucky's regional mental health hospitals is $685 per day, the fact that Simpson's facilities are providing that care for a paltry $38.60 a day accrues to thousands in savings each month for each resident.

To slap Simpson with a $289,000 bill would eat up so much of that already insufficient reimbursement rate that he could no longer afford to house, feed and provide medicine and care for the residents at his first-class homes.

It also would add hundreds to Kentucky's unemployment lines.

past because the standard is higher than before and additional components make up the overall score," explained Debra Foltz, the school system's director of district-wide services. "It does not mean our students are not performing as well or are getting worse. It's now more difficult for students to achieve the ranking of Proficient or Distinguished."

Foltz pointed out the high school's scores on ACT tests have risen every year in the past five years and students are meeting more benchmarks in every area.

"At the high school, we exceeded the state average of student growth in reading and in the combined score of reading and math," said Roxann

Booth, high school principal. "We also matched the state average in science scores."

"We're happy with our science and social studies scores because they are better than the state average," said Curt Bieger, middle school principal. "We should be able to improve our math, reading and writing scores."

"Now that we know the results of the assessment scores, we'll use our wealth of data to make changes to improve our instruction for all students," said Superintendent of Schools Dot Perkins. "Our ultimate goal is to make all our students 100 percent Proficient in all subjects and make sure they are ready for college or careers when they graduate from Gallatin County High School."

Some of our friends have been busy this past week, visiting and traveling, and we have more from our Alaskan sojourners as well:

•With the truck repairs finished, the Bradleys and Meyungs were on the road again, driving the Alaskan Highway. The roads were very rough, a problem in the north because they have frost heaves (frozen roads) and gravel stretches, making the drive very bumpy. During the trip, those bumpy roads rearranged the clothes in the Bradleys' closet many times! Going through the Yukon area, heading to Alaska, they drove by massive mountain ranges which included Mt. Logan at 19,551 feet, the second tallest in North America; very wide river beds with trickling rivers, reflective lakes, wildflowers blooming along the road, and lots of wildlife! Dave and Diana Bradley and Rick and April Meyung finally crossed the border into Alaska. They stopped at the massive sign for pictures and it was time to reset their watches to Alaskan time. The only road into Alaska took them to the small town of Tok. The first night in Alaska was memorable - the mosquitoes were vicious and plentiful and coming in through the stove vent of the camper. Needless to say, they didn't get much sleep that night! More on this exciting trip next week.

•Rae McEntyre continued her exploration of Kentucky state historical sites by spending Friday and Saturday at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. In addition to hiking, she also participated in an elk tour on Saturday morning. She visited the mine where the original elk were released, and during the two hours she was there saw close to 150 elk. Sunday she visited the Middle Creek National Battlefield, site of an early Civil War battle in Eastern Kentucky. She also went to Paintsville Lake State Park and Grayson Lake State Park, where she hiked a trail that followed the shoreline, enjoying the magnificent scenery. Rae will have more for us next week as she continues her exploration of our historic sites.

•Alice and Ron Johnson drove to Burlington, Sunday afternoon, to spend some time with their grandchildren, Brian, Colt, and Corbin Johnson, so their parents could attend the Bengals game. They took the kids to McDonald's for dinner and had a great time. The Bengals lost.

•Delores Hopperton reports that she and Terry had a nice lunch Sunday afternoon with the children. They enjoyed the company of Brad, Jenny, Lila, Carter, Madelyn, and Molly Hopperton; and Josh and Kaleb Frontz. Kera Frontz stopped in later, after work. Delores said it was a great afternoon of visiting, laughing, and enjoying the little ones.

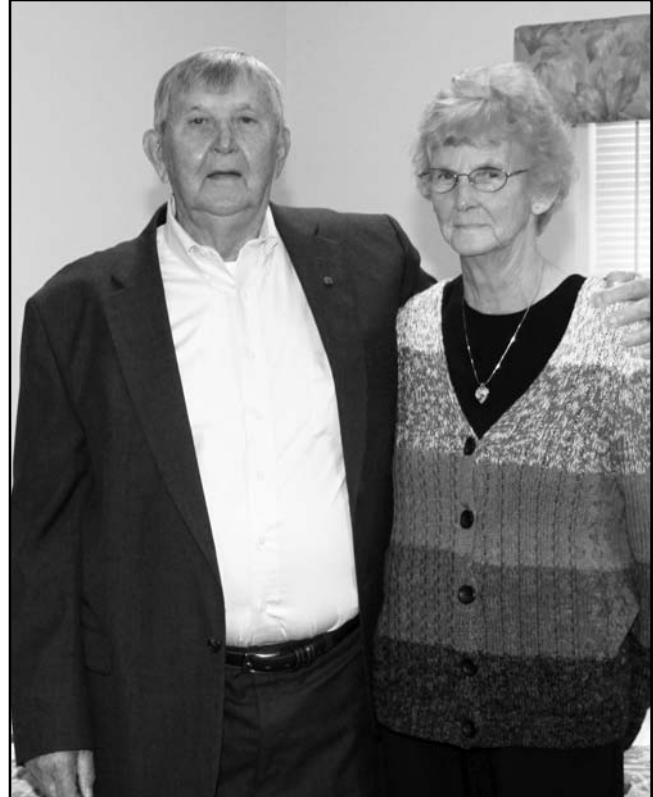

•Carol Estes had guests last week from Nariobi, Kenya. Her brother and sister-in-law, Mark and Susan Hatfield, have been in the states for a month to assist in training volunteer mission groups from churches in Texas and Wisconsin for upcoming trips to Zimbabwe and Angola. They managed to squeeze in a few days to visit family in Kentucky while in the states. They brought Carol's mom, Mary Hatfield of Ashland, with them to Warsaw to visit with Carol. They have not been around trick-or-treating like it's done in Warsaw and they were amazed at the many kids out on a cold, damp night and really loved seeing all of the costumes. Guess where they ate supper on Tuesday evening? Yep, Jewell's on Main saved Carol from cooking again! Another delicious dinner and a fun evening there, celebrating Carol's mom's 82nd birthday. Carol said It was a short but good visit, and now the African Hatfields are safely back in Kenya. Happy birthday, Mary!

•Finally caught up with the Lionbergers this week. Betty reports that she visited her sister and brother-in-law, Linda and George Smith, last week, to celebrate Linda's birthday and share the birthday cake that George made. On Sunday, Betty and Boyd enjoyed a visit from their granddaughter, Olivia Williamson, and her family, Josh, Cadence, and baby Nova. Betty rushed home from church and made a big pot of chili for everyone, much appreciated on these cool autumn days. Their son and daughter-in-law, Keith and Carol West, stopped in later in the day. Happy Birthday, Linda! Now we are all 29 again.

•Sally Haddix and her sister-in-law, Elaine Jones, have just returned from a trip to Maine to visit Sally's daughter and son-in-law, Amy and Nick Fish. She reports they stayed at the Garden Hilton, located on the harbor in Portland, which was very nice and served excellent food. Along with visiting the children, they did some shopping and a lot of walking. They enjoyed beautiful warm weather and the autumn foliage, which were at their peak of color. Due to the hurricane in the northeast, their return flight was delayed and finally rerouted through Chicago, making them a day late in coming home, although Maine escaped the brunt of the storm that ravaged much of the east coast.

•Congratulations to Jack and Sally Peace on their 60th wedding anniversary!

Jack and Sally Peace celebrated their 60th anniversary at the Gallatin County Extension Office on Sunday, November 4, with a number of family and friends in attendance.

The couple exchanged vows on October 30, 1952 at South Fork Church. Their four daughters hosted the anniversary celebration, which included cake and punch and many fond wishes.

Sugar Blues

Do you run out of energy in the middle of the afternoon? You may be suffering from "Sugar Blues." Join us at the Gallatin County Extension Service (395 US 42 West, Warsaw) on Friday, November 9, at 11:00 AM for an information session titled "Sugar Blues" by Laura Weldon, Certified Health Coach. High sugar intake can potentially be linked to several chronic diseases. Learn how and why it is important to reduce the amount of refined sugar that the typical American eats. This program qualifies for Christmas Help requirement. Call 567-5481 to pre-register for "Sugar Blues."

If there is an overweight child in your family, you're not alone. Another program being offered at your Gallatin County Extension Service will be on Thursday, November 8 at 10:00 AM called "Home Is Where the Health Is."

Making good food choices doesn't mean you have to give up your favorite foods or spend a lot of time planning meals. It also doesn't mean that you have to throw all "junk" foods out the door. It does mean you have to learn how to make trade-offs in your daily lifestyle. When you make sensible food choices, your children learn to like those foods, even if it takes them a few tries.

Lifetime nutrition habits are formed during childhood. Even very young children need a diet that includes a wide variety of food. High blood pressure and blood cholesterol, diabetes, and other diseases, as well as social and mental stresses, can be problems for an overweight child. These same problems will very likely be carried into adulthood if weight is not controlled.

To learn more about easy tips for pleasant parent-child relationships and how to lead your child toward a healthy weight, join us at the Gallatin County Extension Service on Thursday, November 8, at 10:00 AM for "Home Is Where the Health Is" OR on Friday, November 9, at 11:00 AM for "Sugar Blues". We'll have fun learning how to coach our children to eat and play well while we get healthy at the same time. These programs also qualify for Christmas Help requirement.

For more information or to pre-registration for either of these parent information sessions please call 567-5481. Both sessions will be held at the Gallatin County Extension Office located at 395 US 42 West, about one mile from the courthouse stoplight. Educational programs of the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability, or national origin.

Bone-shaking, Original Bluegrass, Folk and Blues coming to Vevay

Magnolia Mountain, one of Cincinnati's best bands, is set to perform at the Historic Hoosier Theater in Vevay on Saturday. The concert will be for the Shows of Second Saturday at 7 p.m.

A rootsy "folk orchestree of epic proportion"(Mike Oberst, The Tillers), Magnolia Mountain embraces and explores That Midwestern Thing in a big-tent-American juggernaut that draws from folk, country, bluegrass, blues, rockabilly, and rock. But no matter where they take it, "they have the rare ability to inhabit any branch of Roots music and still sound unmistakably like Magnolia Mountain." (Brian Baker, City Beat).

Anchored by an acoustic musical core and gorgeous 2-, 3- and 4-part close harmony vocals, Magnolia Mountain will appeal to fans of roots music, old and new. Drawing from the deep well of American music, Magnolia Mountain takes different genres, finds the common thread within, and translates them into their own original songs that both pay tribute to the past and carve out their own place in today's musical landscape.

The band is led by songwriter Mark Utley on vocals, acoustic guitar, electric guitar, and banjo. Mark is joined by Melissa English and Renee Frye (harmony vocals), Jeff Vanover (guitar, lap steel, dobro), Bob Lese (mandolin, harmonica), Kathy Woods (fiddle, mandolin), Bob Donisi (upright bass), and Todd Drake (drums, percussion). The band is joined for special occasions by Cincinnati music mainstay Ricky Nye on organ and piano. Magnolia Mountain plays regularly around the greater Cincinnati area, performing Mark's original songs as well as an eclectic selection of covers that range from the Louvin Brothers to Lucero, from Woody Guthrie to the Flying Burrito Brothers, and from Hank Williams Sr. to the Drive-By Truckers. They are at home in quiet "listening rooms", rowdy bars, and anywhere in between.

Magnolia Mountain was nominated for a Cincinnati Entertainment Award in the Folk/American category in 2008, 2009, 2010 and 2011, in addition to performing at the 2009 CEA awards ceremony. At that ceremony, they were also named the recipient of the Rivertown Music Club's 2009 Red MacCormack Memorial Recording Grant. They were also nominated in 2010 for Artist of the Year, Album of the Year (for Redbird Green) and Mark Utley was nominated for Songwriter of the Year. Along with performing at venues as the Southgate House, Madison Theater, Northside Tavern, The Redmoor, The Comet, Leo Coffeehouse and The Crow's Nest, they've also taken part in festivals such as Twangfest, the Whispering Beard Folk Festival, MidPoint Music Festival, The Ohio River Way Paddlefest, Rabbit Hash Old Timer's Day, Edensong, Music for the Mountains, and Metamora Old Time Music Festival. Magnolia Mountain has also played a Studio 89 session live on WNKU-FM radio and a pre-Twangfest set live on KDHX-FM in St. Louis. Their first album, "Nothing as it Was", was released in February 2009. CityBeat magazine called it "soulful, haunting and pure, taking the best of Country, Folk and Bluegrass and refracting it through a modern prism. It rings incredibly authentic and timeless, and the album could have come out 40, 30 or 20 years ago but is too lively and crafty to stand as some sort of retro-music museum piece". In October 2009, the band returned to Ultrasuede Studio with producer John Curley to begin recording their second album. June 19, 2010 saw the release of "Redbird Green", an ambitious 17-song project released on both CD and 2-LP vinyl. This date also saw the release of the band's initial video from the album "Hellbound Train", directed by Cliff Jenkins. "Redbird Green" was heralded by reviewers as "a master class in Americana" (David Kronke), and "an album that exhibits how great American roots music can be" (Donny Kutzbach, Left of the Dial), while the band itself was praised as being "like The Last Waltz come back to life as one unified band" (Mike Breen, CityBeat). Much of late 2010 and early 2011 was spent in preparation for "Music for the Mountains", a benefit concert (with an accompanying album) that was put together by Magnolia Mountain frontman Mark Utley to raise awareness and funds to help fight against mountaintop removal coal mining. The February 2011 event at the historic Southgate House raised almost $12,000 toward this cause. A video for "The Hand of Man", the band's track on the "Music for the Mountains" compilation album, is scheduled to be released in February 2012.

In April, Magnolia Mountain released their third album, "Town and Country". An 18-song double album, "Town and Country" is once again produced by John Curley at Ultrasuede, and will again be released on both CD and 2-LP vinyl. The album features 16 new original songs, including "Shotgun Divorce" (a duet with Bloodshot Records artist Lydia Loveless), as well as two covers: "Don't Leave Just Now" (originally by fellow Cincinnatians Wussy) and "Just to Know What You've Been Dreaming" (written by Centro-matic's Will Johnson). Reserved seating tickets for Magnolia Mountain can be purchased by calling the Switzerland County Visitors Center at (812) 427-3237 or stopping by 128 West Main Street in Vevay. Tickets are $10 or $5 youth (17 & under). The Historic Hoosier Theater is located at 209 Ferry Street in downtown Vevay. The Shows of Second Saturday is presented by Vevay Main Street. For more information, call Michele Thompson, Program Manager at (812) 427-9406.

The property shall be sold subject to ad valorem taxes for the year 2012 and all subsequent years thereafter; easements, restrictions and stipulations of record; assessments for public improvements levied against the property, if any; existing zoning ordinances, statutes, laws, or regulations; and any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the property may disclose. BIDDERS SHALL BE PREPARED TO COMPLY WITH THESE TERMS.

EKU offers nursing degrees online

Health care professionals interested in advancing their careers can now choose from a variety of fully-online degree programs from Eastern Kentucky University, which has been educating leaders in the field for more than 40 years.

Applications are now being accepted for Master of Science (MSN) programs in Public Health Nursing and Psychiatric Mental Health Nurse Practitioner, as well as a new Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP) program. Certificate programs are also available. The new offerings continue ECU's efforts to make education accessible to all through ECU Online.

EKU has offered quality nursing programs on its main campus for generations and has served as a catalyst for positive change through distance education. As a pioneer in the use of interactive television as a medium to expand educational opportunities, for example, the university played a significant role in enhancing the quality of health care in rural Kentucky. The MSN has been available through distance learning since 1995, supplementing ITV with more on-line courses over time.

Fully online options are available in three areas with relevance in today's changing health care climate.

The Doctor of Nursing Practice program, which focuses on organizational leadership, was established in response to a recommendation from the American Association of Colleges of Nursing that the level of preparation needed for advanced nursing practice be elevated to the doctoral degree by 2015.

The Advanced Practice Psychiatric Mental Health Nurse Practitioner Program has enjoyed high certification exam passage rates since its inception in 2004.

The MSN in Public Health Nursing is in demand because of an increased emphasis on population health and prevention and to changes in the national healthcare system. Students choose either a concentration in administration or education. Graduates from the administration concentration are employed in leadership positions in acute care, community, and public health agencies.

Applications are due Nov. 30. Classes begin in January 2013. For more information, visit www.eku.edu/nursing or www.ekuonline.eku.edu or call 859-622-7927.

Named one of the Top 10 Online Colleges in the Nation by "Best Colleges" in 2010, ECU strives to make quality education accessible to everyone. ECU is an accredited, brick-and-mortar institution celebrating more than 100 years of student success. ECU Online offers more than 20 degree options in a variety of fields, including Education, Psychology, Paralegal Studies, Police Studies, Corrections, Juvenile Justice, Occupational Safety, Fire Protection and Homeland Security.
